

A storyteller. A child of God. Wife. Mom. Mentor. Friend. I am all of these, and my desire is to live in such a way that no matter which one you meet, you will see the Word of Christ dwelling richly in me. I want my teaching to empower people to know the truth and power of God's Word that sets them free. I want my praying and interceding to be so powerful that before I call, the Lord has already sent an answer.

It is why I love the Bible. I love Jesus Christ. I love to pray. Words are my friends; hence, I write, I teach, and I speak. I love cooking and baking, which means we always have a house full of friends and family around our dinner table. My husband makes me smile and laugh until my stomach hurts. My children are living life as young adults (hallelujah). I am a southern girl at heart (grits and sweet tea are their own food group), even though I now live in the northeast. I can sing, well sort of; I meet the biblical requirement. My noise is joyful and unto the Lord. My heart's desire is to live an abundant life, make disciples of all men and establish people in the truth and power of God's Word. My mission is to leave a legacy of love, joy and a deep passion for living in the fullness of the Word of God.
